

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

The Hypocrisy of the Left On Display - The CIA Prison Leak Story

One must wonder why is it that the Democrats are up in arms about the leak of Valerie Plame's identity (who, it appears, may have actually been outed by her very own Husband to Major General Valley in the summer of 2002, while in Fox's "Green Room" predating all the claimed offenses), yet they are curiously silent about the disclosure of existence of secret prisons run by the CIA for terror suspects in Eastern Europe. The former, you see, probably wasn't even a crime, as it appears during the time in question that Ms. Plame was not covert. The latter, however, both is a crime and has severe national security implications for everyone in the United States, as it bears directly on the terror war and those who would fly more airplanes into buildings. The Republicans have asked for an investigation, and will likely get one. Where is the outrage from the Left from Herr Reid and Herr Durbin over this criminal act? Is the left only outraged when alleged damage is done to one of their lying friends, as Wilson has now been conclusively proven to be, but not when its done to their country? Things that make you go "ehmmmmmm"!

Posted by Karl Denninger at 09:10